Raider David J. Thatcher greets a young fan at Vacaville's Flight Festival.

Editor's Note:

Within the pages of this edition of the NEWS, you will find a sampling of the newspaper articles, photos and event memorabilia that I accumulated during the Doolittle Raider's 61st Reunion. Thank you to the Fairfield Daily Republic, Vacaville Reporter, the Travis AFB photography department and the Travis AFB Honor Guard. Enjoy!

Dear Friends:

On behalf of the Boards of Directors of the Jimmy Doolittle Air and Space Museum and Education Foundations, it was a honor and privilege to be the official host of the Doolittle Tokyo Raiders 61st Reunion.

We are deeply grateful to the Raiders for allowing this event to be a platform for launching the fundraising drive to build a new aviation museum. This museum, honored with General Jimmy Doolittle's name will display the history of American aviation. The sacrifice, courage and heroism shown by the Raider group exemplifies a long line of historic American Patriots.

Thank you, Travis AFB and its surrounding communities for participating in this wonderful American event.

CURATOR'S CORNER

MUSEUM OPERATIONS HIGHLIGHTS:

In early February, Travis AFB hosted Robert and Margrit Mondavi on a tour of the base. The curator accompanied their entourage, showed them around the museum and described the plans for the Jimmy Doolittle Air and Space Museum.

Air Museum Seminar:

A few weeks later the curator attended the annual Seminar on Mutual Concerns of Air and Space Museums in Washington. There he promoted both the new museum and the Doolittle Reunion. The seminar is an excellent platform for networking and obtaining advice and assistance on all aspects of museum operations, including building new facilities. In March the museum was the scene of the third annual Wing Enlisted Workshop of the 349th AMW. Afterwards the organizers generously donated $1,000 to the museum.

Nuts and Bolts:

Meanwhile, during a heavy rainstorm, part of a roof over our storage and staging area behind the museum collapsed. No damage was done except to the roof, which will have to be torn down and replaced. We can expect more such "incidents" as the current building of 1950s vintage continues to age. Again, this is a reminder of the need for a new facility. Finally, it is with regret that I announce that Mark Pollman, our right-hand man for administration for the past two years has departed for North Carolina where his wife has taken a new position. We wish him the best of luck. In addition Major Diana Newlin, the IMA who has worked periodically at the museum over the past few years, exhausted her mandays for Travis and has rotated to a new position. Among other things, Major Newlin was chiefly responsible for bringing the Reunion to Travis and overseeing the gala at the Hilton. She worked tirelessly for months to ensure the success of this project and we greatly appreciate her dedication.

New Exhibit:

On the occasion of the Reunion, Major Newlin recruited several artists to prepare a special display on Jimmy Doolittle and the raid on Tokyo. SSgt Michael Wilson, as part of a course for Southern Illinois University, prepared an excellent timeline of Doolittle's life in the context of major American events. Dave Allen painted the background for the Doolittle exhibit as well as that for the large scale-model of the USS Hornet built by the Silicon Valley Scale Modelers under the direction of William Ferrante. Thank you also to Rich Radigonda.

Welcoming the heroes

FAIRFIELD MARKS ANNIVERSARY OF DOOLITTLE RAID WITH PARADE

Jay Howser of the Fairfield Daily Republic
Issue April 17, 2003

No group of men was ever closer, said Nolan Herndon of the Doolittle Raiders' eighth crew.

Led by Lt. Col Jimmy Doolittle 61 years ago, 80 Air Force fliers launched the first offensive strikes on Japanese soil following the Pearl Harbor attack during World War II.

Their courage and daring resulted in a huge morale victory for the Allies as the Japanese were forced to pull key forces from around the Pacific Ocean to protect their homeland. American soldiers won the Battle of Midway just six weeks later.

"We were as close a group as ever existed," Herndon told the Daily Republic Wednesday. "We were like Gen. Doolittle's sons. We were like part of his family."

Wednesday afternoon, hundreds of area residents lined the streets of downtown Fairfield to honor the war heroes. Nine of the 18 surviving members were on hand for the Doolittle 61st annual reunion.

As marching bands strode past, patriotic music rang out and aircraft flew overhead, Richard Fitzmaurice of Santa Cruz reflected on his brother, who flew with the Raiders' sixth crew. Sgt. Donald Fitzmaurice perished a few hundred yards off the coast of China after his plane crash landed in the China Sea during the raid. An airman himself, Richard Fitzmaurice had a chance to meet Doolittle and his brother's other companions before the raid.

"Even then it was a brotherhood. These men were brothers of my brother," he said.

Smiles and applause greeted the Raiders as they drove down Fairfield streets. Jim Walton, a Navy veteran and Fairfield resident since 1966, said they earned the adulation.

"We got a group of heroes coming through, people who deserve honors," Walton said. "They took very high risks and I believe they need to be recognized . . . It may be late and overdue, but they deserve everything they get."

Wine and Cheese Social with the Raiders

During the Reunion, the museum was the site, of course, for the Wine and Cheese Social with the Raiders. The museum was packed for this event at which the mayors of the local communities and Mike Peters and Dave Fleming, the presidents respectively of Doolittle Foundation and Doolittle Education Foundation welcomed the Raiders to the local area. Lt. Col. James Warren, a Tuskegee Airman and member of the museum, then gave a brief address. This was followed by several presentations:

- Scholarships to four students from Solano Community College who were specializing in aviation.
- "May An Angel Always Fly on Your Shoulder" presentation and gift to the Raiders from Steve and Linda Stover of Military History on Tour.
- A 1/72nd scale model of USS Hornet's (CV-8) flight deck and island and 16 1/72nd scale models of the B-25s used on the Doolittle raid donated by the Silicon Valley Scale Modelers, Scorpio Innovations, and Obscureco Aircraft. Spokesperson William Ferrante mentioned that they are also donating 16 1/1200th scale models of all the ships that participated in Task Force 16, which escorted the Hornet.

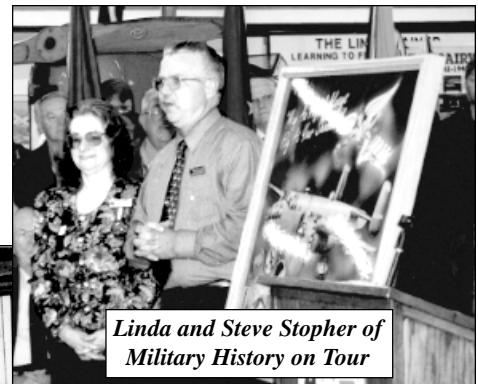

For this event, the wine was donated by Rombauer Vineyards and Chandelle Winery and Stanley Davis donated the hors d'oeuvres.

At Ease!/Richard Rico

April 20, 2003 issue Vacaville Reporter

It was so supernatural you'd think Steven Spielberg had a hand in it. From out of the wet, brooding clouds of a primordial past, three B-25 ghost ships swept loud and low in a bomb run on Monte Vista avenue. P-51 Mustangs came from out of nowhere, their Rolls-Royce engines snarling, their torsos polished to look like chrome fire-flies. The bombers' brutish Cyclone engines rattled windows and set off car alarms all over Vacaville, leaving in their wakes the echoes of distant thunder and vibrations that caused something indescribable in the spine to flutter. Still amazing after all these years. Add 13 more of these bombers, back pedal 61 years, and it had to be as unlikely then as it is now. The reality of squinting at three lovingly restored, tight-formation, B-25s silhouetted against our Blue Ridge is nearly as rare as being in the presence of anyone who was actually there; survivors of the Doolittle raid on Tokyo, for instance. Yet there we were, there they were. Of the original 80 on the raid on April 18, 1942, 17 are still alive. Nine were on the stage at the Nut Tree Airport. A gem of a corporate hangar was transformed by yeomen efforts (Chief Master Sgt. Fred Lewis, Phil Velez and a gaggle of dauntless doers) into one, big waving flag of appreciation to ironmen whose valor goes back to a time when the word "heroes" was spelled with a capital H. The surprise raid on Tokyo of 16 bombers, launched from the pitching deck of the USS Hornet was the kind of fearless act pulled off by men who wheeled their endowments out to the aircraft in wheelbarrows. They didn't need Spielberg to draw the picture, and neither do we. If Steve did have anything to do with the fantasy ride here he would have been wise to get it right, or face the merciless slings and arrows of the Raiders' historian, C.V. Glines. No punch-puller, he, Glines took to task the likes of Hollywood for tinkering with the truth when it comes to the retelling the “30 Seconds Over Tokyo” story. The portrayal in the movie, “Pearl Harbor,” was ridiculous,” Glines said. “It bombed at the box office, just as it should have.” He even took a swipe at a prepared statement from the office of Cong. G. Miller which articulated the fact some Raider had been “interred” in Japanese prisons, instead of interned.

A mighty "hello Vacaville" from Honorary Raider Tung-Sheng Liu. By the way, Mr. Liu was an early C-5A engineer.

“He should have had someone check his copy,” C.V. said. I like the guy, just don’t ask me to speak before him at a banquet.

BY NOW, every school child knows that the 61st reunion of the Doolittle Raiders was held in Fairfield, Vacaville and Travis AFB. It will turn out to be as historical as the raid itself; with only 17 survivors, we’ll never see it here again. The brotherhood of the Raiders is a full of tradition as everything else that goes with the story. Since the mid-’60s—one for each crew member—have been reverently guarded at the Air Force Academy. When the last two are upright, they’ll toast their brothers with cognac. If that isn’t historically accurate, Glines will be on my case.

IT IS Thursday afternoon and I’m past my deadline. But t’hell with it. I have this story to tell. Monster star-spangled, helium-filled balloons—each carrying a tiny banner with the name and rank of a Raider crewmember—are still bobbing in the hangar breeze. The 800 folding chairs have been folded, all the choirs and chorales—both boys and men—are salving their throats with Diet Coke or tequila; respectively, I hope. And the Raiders have been bussed to their next appointed round. What lingers is the throaty sound of those old bombers and fighters, spreading their beautiful wings and clearing their throats overhead. I just saw a Hawker Sea Fury strafe the runway again and do a gut-wrenching pull over Nugget. There goes another B-25, loaded with wide-eyed passengers willing to pay the price to get just a hint of what it must have been like. One of these days, a new museum will be built at Travis. Part of the proceeds over the weekend will help make it happen. When it does, it will be called the Jimmy Doolittle Air and Space Museum. Jimmy would be pleased. But probably not as pleased as he was on that day in 1942 when he and 79 others pulled off a feat that keeps throbbing. A B-25 bomb run on Vacaville isn’t the same, but it’s close.

Travis AFB's Delta Breeze

“Dinner with the Raiders”

“Dinner with the Raiders” was a military salute to celebrate the 61st anniversary of their brave attack on Japan April 18, 1942.

Wendy Bence and her assistant, Karla Petry of the Travis Officer's Spouses Club worked closely with Cathleen Handlin and Travis AFB staff to coordinate this impressive event.

After the arrival of the Raiders and Posting of the Colors by the Brotherhood of Vietnam Veterans, Vacaville, CA, the National Anthem was sung by Mrs. Peggy Thornburg and the invocation was given by Reverend Jake DeShazer. Rev. DeShazer was a Bombardier Corporal on Raider takeoff Number 16, and P.O.W. of the Japanese for 3.5 years.

Following a moving P.O.W./MIA Ceremony presented by the Travis AFB Honor Guard and multimedia production of the Tokyo Raid by Raider Historian Col (Ret). C.V. Glines (Honorary Raider and author, Vacaville resident Eddy Kaanoi—The Waikiki Cowboy led the sold out crowd of over 300 persons in the singing of God Bless America.

Diners enjoyed a delicious cuisine prepared by Chef Fred Smith of the American Culinary Federation and 1940's era music played by The Music Alive Orchestra. The wine was contributed by Rombauer Vineyards of Napa.

After the intermission, Dave Fleming, President of the Jimmy Doolittle Air and Space Museum Education Foundation welcome everyone to the 61st Doolittle Raider Reunion and introduced the evening's dynamic motivational speaker returned P.O.W. Paul E. Galanti, Commander, USN (Ret).

In appreciation for Commander Galanti's visit, Mr. Ken Delfino presented Paul with a flag that was flown over the USS Arizona Memorial in appreciation of his sacrifice and service during his Naval career and Mr. Steve Stopher, representing Military History on Tour (M-HOT), gave him a 2001 commemorative coin set.

The patriotic evening closed with a crowd pleasing sing-a-long of Praise the Lord, but Pass the Ammunition...and We'll All Stay Free! Amen!

Commander Paul Galanti is presented a commemorative American flag from Mr. Ken Delfino in appreciation of Paul's sacrifice and service during his naval career.

Eddy Kaanoi—The Waikiki Cowboy led the sold out crowd in the singing of God Bless America.

The Five POW/MIA Hat Ceremony

THE FOLLOWING IS THE SCRIPT FOR THE FIVE POW/MIA HAT CEREMONY PRESENTED AT THE "DINNER WITH THE RAIDERS:"

Master of Ceremonies (MC): Ladies and gentlemen, please direct your attention to the front of the room.

"Adagio for String" music begins as the Honor Guard members enter the room at a ceremonial pace towards the POW/MIA table with the Army leading, then Marine, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard Honor Guard)

MC: The Military Caste is filled with symbolism...you see a table set for a special group who cannot be with us tonight, for they have answered our nation's highest calling and have yet to return from the field of battle. They are America's prisoners of war and those missing in action. They are commonly referred to as POWs and MIAs.....we call them brothers and sisters.

It is in this gathering that we choose to strengthen the bonds of camaraderie. We would be remiss if we failed to recognize and remind ourselves of our purpose and those who have gone before us and reflect on their deeds. They never questioned, nor faltered in doing their duty, nor in the giving of themselves in the ultimate form. Though our nation is not at war this night, let us remember those who fought the battles on the land, sea and air and those who displayed conspicuous gallantry in the execution of their mission at the cost of their lives.

(After each branch of services is announced Honor Guard member will ceremonially rotate hat and place it on plate—narrator waits until Honor Guard member comes back to attention before proceeding to the next branch of service)

MC: Each member of the Honor Guard represents one of the five branches of the United States Military. The representatives of the five services portray our comrades, unknown by many, forgotten by none.

ARMY . . . MARINES . . . NAVY . . . AIR FORCE . . . COAST GUARD the tablecloth is white, symbolizing the purity of their intentions to respond to their country's call to arms. There is a vase holding three flowers. The red is for those who gave their lives for their country. The white is for those who returned and are with us. The yellow is for those who are missing and we pray will return to us soon.

The ribbon prominently displayed on the vase reminds us of the yellow ribbon worn on the lapels and on the breasts of thousands who bear witness to their unyielding determination to demand proper account of our missing. A slice of lemon is on the bread plate to remind us of the bitter fate of those not with us. There is salt upon the plate, symbolic of the tears from the families and loved ones who have and continue to keep the faith . . . as they wait.

(Narrator strongly enunciates the last three words—this is the cue for Honor Guard members to take the goblets off the table)

(As Honor Guard members reach and lift the glasses slowly, they then turn the goblet over on the word upright)

MC: The goblets are inverted, signifying those who cannot be here. However, in remembrance of them, we place their goblets UPRIGHT as they are with us in spirit.

(Honor Guard member lights the candle)

MC: The lighting of the candle shows our vigilance for those still missing.

MC: This table is set aside as a reminder of those who have fought in defense of our country.

MC: Please rise for the playing of Taps.

(Playing of taps—Honor Guard members render a slow salute)

(Narrator pauses until the playing of Taps is complete before doing the toast)

MC: Please remain standing as we toast with water to America's honored and beloved POWs and MIAs . . .

(Pause...waiting for audience to charge glasses and stand)

MC: Hear, hear.

MC: Ladies and gentlemen, please be seated

(Honor Guard will exit as the audience is seated)

Doolittle ‘heroes’ honored at banquet

Tim Fields of the Fairfield Daily Republic

Issue April 19, 2003

As swing music and chit chat bounced about the Fairfield Hilton’s banquet room Friday night, Airman First Class Benjamin Tech pulled out his book, full of precious autographs from the legendary men called Doolittle’s Raiders.

To Tech and to millions of others, the men are great American heroes.

More than 300 people filled the Hilton Garden Inn in Fairfield to honor the daring Raiders who flew bombers from an aircraft carrier in the Pacific to drop bombs over Japan a few months after the demoralizing attack on Pearl Harbor during World War II.

The event marked the Raider’s 61st anniversary and culminated a three-day celebration in Fairfield to honor the brave men who made that treacherous flight.

While dinner was pricey at $300 a plate, the proceeds will help fund the construction of a proposed Jimmy Doolittle Air and Space Museum at Travis Air Force Base.

This was such a monumental event,” Tech said. Tech is stationed at Travis Air Force Base and recently returned from duty in the Middle East. “I really enjoy history I think it’s important for all people under 25 to understand (World War II) and its place in our history. By celebrating and honoring Doolittle’s Raiders, I’m helping to maintain their legacy.”

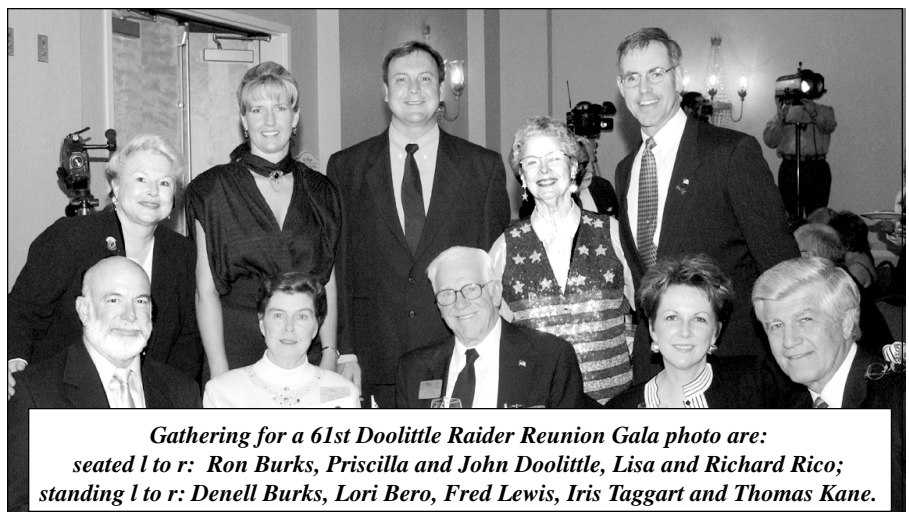

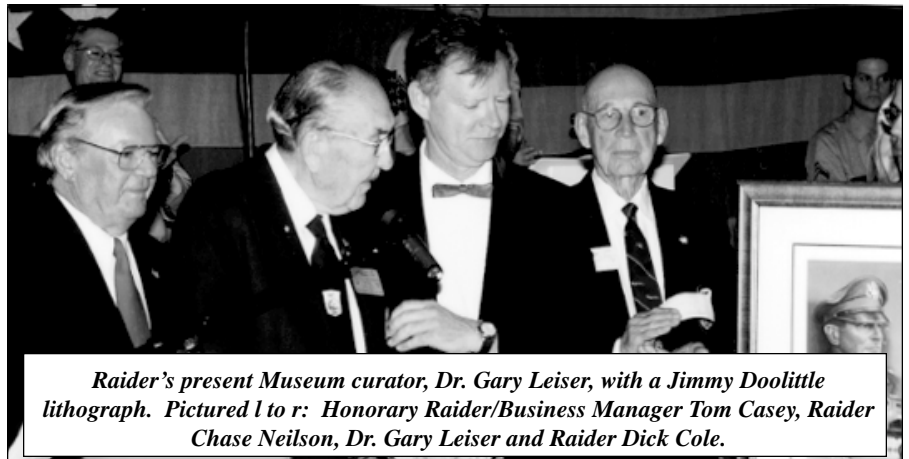

Among the fans of the Raiders was Cliff Robertson who spoke to the crowd and offered his thanks to the men who risked their lives. “As an American and a pilot of many years, I’m here to salute these fine men,” he said.

Making her way through those dancing to swing music, Congresswoman Lois Wolk said she wanted to be here because the Raiders meant so much to her late father. Her father served in India during World War II and the Raiders were always an inspiration to the troops during tough times. According to the groups’ historian Carrol Glines, the 80 daring Raiders gave the United States its first good news in the most devastating war the country ever experienced.

With tears in his eyes he said the Raiders represent a generation that is fading away, yet these men made us what we are today, a country full of honor and dignity.

“They leave us with this legacy—forever,” he said.
